Job Search Strategies

Getting “The” Job, Not “a” Job

The good news is there are lots of jobs out there. The bad news is that all jobs are not right for you. Sometimes we say, “The hardest job you will ever have is finding the right job.” The job search will test your self-knowledge, research skills, organization, persistence and persuasion. Finding the job you want has to be a planned, systematic effort. Your career depends not just on knowing your qualifications, but how well you market them.

Let say that again—it’s essential, and we promised you the essential. Your career depends not only on your qualifications, but also on how well you market them.

What is a “Good” Job?

Thankfully we are all different and good at different things. It makes our society work. So one person’s bad job is another person’s dream job. If you think driving a garbage truck is a bad job, you have never used a 20-ton compactor on an ugly couch and three Christmas trees. Kaboom!

So what do you want to do? If you can’t answer this question, you may want to stop by during Drop-in Hours and talk to a career counselor. He or she may recommend a longer appointment to discuss plan of action or they may suggest that

Guiding You to Career Success

UCR’s Career Center offers a variety of programs to assist all students on their career path, providing guidance on resume writing, job searching and interviewing. The Career Center also provides specialized programming for underrepresented student groups, including first-generation college students, undocumented students and student veterans.

ASPIRE

ASPIRE — Abilities-focused Students: Planning, Informing, Resource building, Exploring employment — is a career-development and professional-leadership program focused on the enhancement and exploration of career skills and transferable life skills for undergraduate students with disabilities. Apply for the program here. For more information, contact Vanessa Lee, welee@ucr.edu, (951) 827-2827; or Glynn Wild, glynw@ucr.edu, (951) 827-4338.

Butterfly Project

A partnership between the Career Center and Undocumented Student Programs, the Butterfly Project is an eight-week program designed to provide professional-development opportunities.
