As equity practitioners, CARE advocacy staff members work to holistically support, retain, and create a sense of belonging for individuals in our community impacted by violence in order to support their success at UCR. As UCR’s certified sexual assault/domestic violence victim advocates, CARE advocates operate within an empowerment model of support, aiming to provide those impacted by violence with personalized advocacy/persistence strategies, on- and off-campus resources, and supporting whichever path the individual feels will be most helpful with their healing and learning at UCR. CARE serves students, faculty, staff — as well as support individuals such as friends or colleagues — to meet with them in a safe and highly confidential space. CARE also provides a wide range of holistic and trauma-informed primary prevention programs that promote a culture of consent and are aimed at ending sexual violence here at UCR.

Quick Fact
The CARE office is able to thrive and facilitate support and education because of our passionate staff, student volunteers and community. Social change activism is the heart of our office, and we see that with every advocacy session and prevention effort.

“I’m so thankful for CARE as it was an amazing source of support that helped me balance the various aspects of my life at a time when I was struggling. I admit I was initially hesitant to reach out but am so glad I did. I’d say the best part of working with CARE is that I was able to feel safe and that I can actually make it through the difficulties I was facing.”
